In September 2015, Munger Construction successfully concluded the construction of the new Department of Public Works storage building for the City of Danbury, situated within the picturesque Tarrywile Park.

Tarrywile Park, originally a functioning dairy farm established in the 1920s, underwent a development initiative led by the City of Danbury. Munger Construction was engaged to undertake the design and construction of a new facility, aligning with the pastoral ambiance of the former farm.

The pole barn structure encompasses a three-bay garage area featuring overhead doors, facilitating convenient equipment access. Its visually appealing attributes, characterized by red siding and a cupola, contribute to a timeless and barn-like aesthetic. The design and construction of this new pole barn facility successfully meet the storage requirements of the Danbury Department of Public Works while seamlessly integrating into the rural and scenic surroundings of Tarrywile Park.
