Success Story: Atlantic Aviation

Pat Munger Construction Company, Inc. completed the 40,000-square-foot airport hangar for Atlantic Aviation at Waterbury-Oxford Airport (OXC) in Oxford, Connecticut. This state-of-the-art space includes a 4,000-square-foot U.S. Customs and Border Protection facility with briefing rooms, holding areas, and closed-interview capabilities, providing international travelers with a streamlined and time-saving alternative to other U.S. Customs gateways in the region.

Shawn Rose, Area Director for Atlantic Aviation, emphasized the significance of the time savings and convenience offered by the new facility for customers. Clearing customs at Waterbury-Oxford, as opposed to other high-traffic airports in the region, is now a much more accessible option for virtually any flight transiting the border.

Kevin A. Dillon, A.A.E., executive director of the Connecticut Airport Authority, acknowledged the opening of the facility as a significant milestone in the continued growth of Waterbury-Oxford Airport. This development not only expands international travel opportunities but also ensures a seamless experience for those traveling for business or leisure. This new facility enhances the overall traveler experience in Waterbury/Oxford, showcasing the positive impact of collaboration and forward-thinking initiatives.
