Client Overview

Since 1981, Chabaso Bakery has earned a reputation for producing premium artisan breads using traditional baking methods and modern food production technology. Munger Construction has partnered with Chabaso to support the bakery's continued growth through facility improvements that enhance production while keeping operations running.

Our relationship began through trusted food facilities engineer Tom Kores, whose knowledge of food production and confidence in our team helped establish a strong partnership. Over the years, that partnership has grown through collaboration, responsiveness, and a shared commitment to solving challenges rather than simply completing construction projects.

Build The Best - Be The Best

Partnership for Success: Chabaso Bakery

Building Within an Active Food Production Facility

Working in an occupied food manufacturing facility requires careful planning, flexibility, and a thorough understanding of USDA regulations. Projects must be coordinated around production schedules, often requiring after-hours work or tightly planned shutdowns to minimize disruption and quickly restore operations.

Supporting Growth Through Practical Solutions

Over the years, Pat Munger Construction has completed a diverse range of projects, including building additions, production equipment foundations, office renovations, overhead door modifications, flour storage silos, and planned loading dock enhancements.

Each project has helped improve efficiency while supporting Chabaso's evolving production needs.

One of the most impactful improvements was the installation of a specialized freezer. This enhancement increased production capacity while maintaining the quality and consistency for which Chabaso is known.

A Partnership That Continues to Grow

Our approach begins with listening—understanding each client's operations, asking the right questions, and developing solutions tailored to their business. That philosophy has resulted in a trusted partnership and continues to generate repeat business today.

As Chabaso continues to grow, opportunities remain for future improvements, including additional flour storage and loading dock enhancements. Munger Construction looks forward to continuing the partnership by delivering practical solutions that support Chabaso's long-term success.
